DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 8/9/04, have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

PRIOR ART

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-3, 7-14, 17, and 22-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhao et al. (P/N 5,962,856); taken in view of Spivey et al. (P/N 5,528,043).

This rejection is reiterated and maintained from the previous office action, mailed 2/5/04, and as necessitated by amendment regarding newly submitted claims which are also rejected hereinunder. Applicants firstly argue that output current control is the circuit invention and pointed to Figure 9 for a depiction of one way to implement the claimed invention. In response the Figure 9 depiction simply indicates the electronic control of rows and columns in an array sensor as does the above combination of Zhao et al. taken with Spivey et al. Applicants emphasize “two” sets of row and column transistors and selectors. The instant claims are limited to “two” each of such items and thus the plurality of rows and columns in both Zhao et al. and Spivey et al. for row and column selection via corresponding transistors still is deemed to suggest and motivate the practice of instant invention embodiments. Such electronic elements operate via electrical phenomena which are all related as voltage and current for sensing, control, etc. Applicants further argue that two supplies, two sets of column selectors, two sets of row selectors, and transistors are claimed. In response two of said circuit elements are minimally required in the instant claim embodiments which also includes more than two such elements as already discussed above as being set forth in the cited combination of references. This argument therefore is non-persuasive. Specifically regarding the two power supplies, again multiple sources of power are also included as instant claim embodiments and this is reasonably present in that each transistor in Spivey et al. is a separate unit and must have its own electrical connection as a power supply. The Spivey et al. overall power supply connects to all of these transistor power input supplies via electrical connections or supplies as the branches on a tree. Each branch supplies electrical power, voltage, etc. to each transistor. This same arrangement is shown in applicants’ pointed to Figure 9 where a current source supplies electrical current which, of necessity is driven by a voltage and its corresponding power supply characteristics.

CLAIMS OBJECTIONS

Claims 6 and 21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

No claim is allowed.

Applicants' amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicants are reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
